The Man Who Stops His Paper

Philip Gilbert Hamerton, in his admirable tapers on "Intellectual Life" thus talks to a man who stops his paper; "Newspapers are to the civilized world what the daily house talk is to the members of the family, they keep our daily interest in each other, they save us from the evils of isolation. To live as a member of the great while race that has filled Europe and America and colonized or conquered whatever territory it has been to occupy, to share from day to day its thoughts, its cares; its inspirations, it is necessary that every man should read his paper. Why are the French personness so be wildered and at sea? It is because they never read a news-Philip Gilbert Hamerton, in his adof concentrated setion, so nors alive and modern.
